

We help with Application Development

STRIDE has decades of deep and broad expertise in synthesizing, characterizing and processing diverse polymers and testing them in a wide variety of applications for many markets. For example, STRIDE has a collaborative agreement with Zymergen, a California-based molecular technology company, to develop its microbially-derived building blocks for applications such as films, coatings and adhesives.

Contact us at research@stride2future.org to learn more.